Lots Of Rats - And Dead

Above is visual proof of the killing power of the new rat poison used at the City Dump the last part of August. The dump will be baited with what is termed "the world's most deadly poison" again in October to catch rats who were missed in the first poisoning. Pictured above on the left is Keith Dobson of the Dobson Pest Control Company who handled the operation. On the left is City Manager Russell Carlson. The mound of dead rats was picked up from an area about thirty feet square. This was but a very small amount of the total rats killed in "Operation Killer."

Former Resident Succumbs In Detroit

Services were held at the Cooper Brothers Funeral Home, Detroit, for Walter J. Buck, age 64, who passed away at the East Side General Hospital, Detroit, on Friday, September 10. In that city he was a tool and die maker for Turnstedt Company, a division of General Motors. While in Grayling he owned a home where Stephen's Canoe Livery now stands. He worked at the CC Camp and Grayling Fish Hatchery here for many years before moving to Detroit.

Young Eagle

This down-looking creature is a bald eagle, though obviously too young to be banded. He was found in a nest in the north lower peninsula. Conservation department field workers sealed a 30-foot tree to band and photograph him. It will probably be another three years before the characteristic white head plumage appears on this youngster.

Conservation Department Buying Cones

Red (Norway) and white pine cones are again in demand as the Department of Conservation begins their Fall cone purchasing program. A record volume of red pine cones is needed to furnish seed for the accelerated nursery program which is a result of an unprecedented demand for planting stock from farmers, Christmas tree growers, pulp and lumber companies and other private land owners.

Cones normally ripen in this locality around mid-September and can be picked until about mid-October. Red pine cones when ripe are deep purple in color with brown tipped scales and will float in kerosene. White pine cones turn yellowish green with brown tipped scales and will float in linseed oil when ripe.

Pickers are cautioned against mutilating, breaking, or otherwise damaging trees. Do not break or cut off branches or tips. Be sure you have permission from the property owners before picking on private land. Cones must be clean, ripe, healthy and unopened. Needles, leaves, bark, unsound cones, and opened cones should be sorted out before cones are delivered. Cones will heat and open up if left in bags for more than one day. If they cannot be delivered shortly after picking they should be spread out in a cool place until they can be delivered.

Cones will be purchased at the following times only: Wednesday and Friday of each week from 3:00 to 5:30 at the Grayling Fish Hatchery. Cones will not be purchased in quantities of less than 1/2 bushel.

Rep. Cederberg Speaks Here Next Monday

Representative in Congress from the Tenth District, Elford E. "Al" Cederberg will speak at a dinner to be held at the AuSable River Inn next Monday evening. The dinner is being arranged by the Republican County Committee of which John H. Peterson is chairman.

Invited to attend is the Kiwanis Club of Grayling and their wives as well as all other people in the county who are interested in hearing Rep. Cederberg report on the session of Congress just adjourned.

The meeting will be the regular meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Grayling for that week, it has been announced by club officials. It is being held in order that the club members and their wives and guests may hear Congressman Cederberg. The dinner will start at 6:30 p. m. and tickets are available from John H. Peterson, U-Harley Russell, Don Gothro, Robert Bover or Robert Strong.

Over 100 persons are expected to turn out Monday evening at the AuSable River Inn to hear Rep. Cederberg report on his first term in Congress as representative of this district. Cederberg, who in his two years in Washington has already expended considerable energy in behalf of Grayling interests, has expressed the desire for people here to take advantage of his visit by personally visiting with him. According to Congressman "Al" he can only work for the interests of the people if the people will make known to him what they expect from their government.

Rep. Cederberg, accompanied by his Administrative Assistant, Mr. Bill Hackett, are expected to be at the AuSable River Inn on Wednesday afternoon and early and will be available to the voters at the Court House.

The local Republican committee has urged everyone to take advantage of this opportunity to talk personally with our Congressional representative whether it be about problems of local veterans, farmers, workers, businessmen or about something on a national or international scale.

Kiwanis Club Notes

Charles Parks, director of special studies at Central Michigan College at Mt. Pleasant and summer resident at the AuSable River just out of Grayling, was the speaker at Monday night's meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Grayling.

Mr. Park was introduced by Vice-President Les Hunter who was in charge of the program. Mr. Parks took as his subject, "Your College". He terms Central Michigan in that way due to the fact that the State Board of Education has designated that Central Michigan College should service the northern 38 counties of which Crawford County is a part.

The speaker told of the tremendous growth at Central Michigan and at all of the higher centers of learning in the state. He traced the physical plant of the college which is now worth around twenty-one millions of dollars.

As of this week, 2,400 students are registered at Central Michigan which shows a sizeable increase from last year. Mr. Parks said that the college officials were planning on an enrollment of about 5,000 students by 1960. He told the club of the varied courses of study offered and explained the many scholarships which were offered by Central Michigan.

Step by step he traced the absolute necessities of life for a student and what they would cost. He finished his talk by inviting members of the club to come down to Central Michigan some weekend this fall to see a football game as guests of the college.

So far 18 boys from Grayling Troop 77 plan to attend.

Grayling Golf Club Annual Meeting Wednesday, Sept. 29

Plans for a new garage are about completed, it was said, and there has been some discussion about holding a building "bee". If a decision is reached to do so, club members will be notified.

Club President Robert Neafie stated today that the club has had a good year financially and upon closing of the books for the year, the club should show a profit. Although the club ran into a couple of snags such as plumbing trouble, a greater use of the club by members and from the tourists this year will aid the club in showing a good report for the year.

Several improvement projects are under discussion for next year upon which more will be decided at the meeting next Wednesday.

Hold Heavy Blue Devils To 6-0

The injury riddled G. High Vikings travel to O. this Saturday afternoon for second grid contest of the year after losing the opener to the Lord Blue Devils under the lights last Friday night 6 to 0.

The Vikings were without services of halfback Gary Denner who broke several bones in his foot on Tuesday during practice. Larry Cox, a reserve lost to the team also prior to game with a badly sprained both boys are out for the rest of the season.

These two injuries coupled with Mike Gibbons being injured in the first play of the game as fact that the Gaylord team weighed Grayling 45 pounds the man, the Vikings put up remarkable battle. Last year Blue Devils defeated the Vikings by a 32 to 0 score.

After Worden was injured Viking football coach three days to find a substitute the position. Mike Gibbons' regular defensive back took but after his injury early in the game, 98 pound freshman Dr. Moore took over and played the rest of the game on of Although he was very young experienced and small, looked very good.

Two other injured are Jorgenson, regular fullback, played the entire Gaylord but will be out for some time Tom Gibbons who suffered sprained ankle before the had a hard time sparing the ball.

Gaylord produced their score when they recovered a fumble near midfield in first quarter. Using their advantage, the Blue Devils running from a T formation on unbalanced line moved right the center of Grayling's line short gaining power play score. The Vikings smothered attempt at point after down.

Grayling moved to Gaylord yard line early in the third quarter on a play that should given them first down and yards to go for a touchdown, a fumble again recovered by lord stopped the drive.

In the third quarter, the devises a method of pinning the Gaylord line thrusts they moved to running the end the final quarter, Grayling completely stalled the Blue Defense. Mel Luter at end Don Denton at safety spearheaded the Grayling defense. whole team looked very good defense in holding their heavier opponents in check.

Coach Larry Baumann planned Ken Lararowicz to back with either Keith John or Keith Warner taking over right guard spot. Don Denton moved to a fullback position Bill Schreiber has joined squad and appears to be a leading candidate for a left end.

The Vikings bowed to Oma last year by a 24 to 12 score are given better than even chance for a victory this year. Even though injuries will cut into team's effective performance on defense and offense, it is thought that the Vikings have the strength to maneuver Onaway.

Officers and directors of Mrs. Ladies Club met with Fr. John A. Breitenstein at Rectory Tuesday evening of week to go over plans for new re-vamped women's organization of St. Mary's church. First meeting of the club will be held in the parish hall on Tues evening, Oct. 5th. At that time ports of present officers will be given and installation of new officers will take place.

Miss Jane Ann Martin of Oma was here over the weekend visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Trueitner.

BACKGROUND: ASIA

Congress Wonders if Individual Americans Would Support Strong Indochina Policy Which Risks War

By WALTER SNEAD
Washington Correspondent,
National Weekly Newspaper Service
(This is the second of four articles on Indochina and the Far East.)

WILL individual Americans support a strong policy in Indochina and in southeast Asia which might risk a shooting war?

It was under the belief that they would not support such a policy that some congressional leaders in this administration refused to back up Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and the policy he advocated . . . either united action or massive retaliation. Particularly was this true this year with a congressional election coming up in November. Whether this is a true appraisal of the thinking of the American people or not, has no place in this article. The fact remains that on this assumption, true or false, the United States elected to bow in deference to its two principal allies, Britain and France, at Geneva. Further, the belief that the American people were sick of war and would no longer support the Korean conflict, led to the almost frantic peace at any price settlement in Korea.

And so it remains to be seen whether or not, as Mr. Dulles predicts, failure to follow a resolute policy now, will result in greater war danger within a few years.

And so without accomplishing real peace, the American taxpayer will go on spending his tax money in both Indochina and Korea, in Japan, in Formosa . . . to maintain the huge military and naval bases we have extending from Alaska and the Aleutian Islands down through Japan, Korea, Formosa, Okinawa, the Philippines and other Pacific islands. We maintain an army of occupation in Japan, and another huge army is ranged along the truce line in Korea. In addition we are extending loans, economic aid and Point Four assistance in India, Pakistan, Nepal, Afghanistan, Indonesia and Arabia.

Our federal budget for 1954 included $800,000,000, exclusive of military-end items, programmed for Indochina. We have given and will continue to give technical assistance through the Foreign Operations Administration on repair and improvement of roads, airports, seaports, seed and crop improvement and other assistance.

We are the biggest importer of raw natural rubber from Indochina, importing some 72,000 metric tons last fiscal year. Already teams of FOA technical experts are in Indochina making a reappraisal for Point Four and economic assistance needs in the remaining free area. There are those in the isolationist group in Congress who declare, as they have on all the economic aid programs, that this American money is just being poured down a drain. In this case, money going to Indochina is also a support for the whole budgetary position of the French nation which includes the French commitments to NATO in Europe. Without this help in Indochina, France could not have met her commitments to support NATO that this country considers vital to the buttressing of the entire western world against Communist Russian imperialism in Europe.

So aside from the human element there are some of the stakes the American people have in Indochina. Up to this day it has not been the American way to desert an ally nor a weak nation seeking its own liberty as is Indochina.

There is clear evidence that as a result of the uneasy Korean truce, both Russia and the Chinese Reds were able to divert huge quantities of armaments and the materials of modern warfare to the Indochinese front. And both nations furnished some manpower at the division level in experienced officers. While there is no open proof any Chinese army was used in the invasion of Laos, or in the fighting in north Vietnam, there is plenty of evidence that the ceasefire in Korea permitted the Reds to step up their aggression and support of Ho chi Minh with powerful artillery, tanks and ammunition.

It also must be admitted that French failures in Indochina were not only military, but political as well. Some Far East experts believe that only a miracle can save Laos and Cambodia from being swallowed up without much trouble. The guarantees of their security and independence were so weakened in the final Geneva agreement they probably cannot be saved from Communist penetration without open intervention.

That's the Indochina-Far East stake. If the American people support Secretary Dulles in his firm, resolute policy there's the chance the Reds may back down, and communist aggression may be halted in its tracks. That's the best that could happen. The worst would mean world war III . . . An atomic-hydrogen bomb war.

If we back down and further appease the power-hungry Reds, it could mean the loss of all for which we fought in the Pacific . . . the Philippines, for instance. Japan and Korea would become other Red satellites behind the iron curtain and the U. S. perimeter of defense would be withdrawn eastward in the Pacific.

The question is, do we have the leadership for such resoluteness now, and will the American people back up that leadership?

Issues Clearly Defined For This Fall's State Political Battle

CAMPAIGN ISSUES are clearly defined for the Nov. 2 election. Both Republicans and Democrats will be arguing about the same points, but from opposite sides. Independent voters, or those who are "sitting on the fence," can weigh the logic of the politics. Outcome of the election will probably depend on their decision. Listed below are some main issues.

Economic conditions. GOP will show that the Democratic "prophecy of doom" were wrong in predicting depression; produce reliable figures to show that this year represents a successful shift from a war to a peace time economy. Statistics will show that 1954 is second best in the nation's history. Democrats will pounce on "second best," claiming that every year must be a best. The Republicans approach has lacked boldness, they will charge.

Harmony in government. Republicans will argue that the governor and the legislature should be of the same party for maximum efficiency. They will point the record of incumbent administrative officers and predict that even more could be accomplished if there were a Republican governor to work with, instead of hamper, the House, the Senate,

STOPPING A CHILD KILLER

By Science Features

Whooping cough, called the number one child killer in North America by the U.N.'s World Health Organization, can almost be eliminated. Between 1940 and 1948 it was responsible for three times as many deaths as nine other infant diseases combined, according to the WHO. But modern vaccine and drugs now give parents new hope.

Children under five years of age are particularly susceptible to whooping cough and the majority of deaths occur among those under two. The disease is almost always serious, for it reduces the strength of the tiny sufferer, making him an easy prey to pneumonia and influenza.

Whooping cough, technically called pertussis, first masquerades as an ordinary cold, with running nose and eyes and a slight cough—at which time it is most contagious. Afterwards, as the coughing attacks develop, the child's attempts to breathe produce the characteristic whooping sound.

Antibiotic drugs are a useful weapon against this scourge. A recent report from the Bremen Pediatric Clinic in Germany said that "terramycin had an unequivocally beneficial effect." Complications were also reduced and 73 per cent of 85 whooping cough patients receiving the drug were "favorably influenced."

The best protection against whooping cough, according to most medical authorities, is obtained by vaccinating children when they are about six months old. A series of injections, often given with shots that prevent other serious diseases, usually make children immune for several years.

The Company has experienced a continued demand for service throughout its area since World War II. On January 1, 1946, the Company served approximately 39,000 telephones and today that number has increased to over 78,000 telephones, an increase of 100% in the past 8 years. Despite this increase, which has averaged 4,800 new telephones per year, the Company still has approximately 4,800 unfilled applications for service. During the past 4 years the Company has converted 28 communities to an improved type of service and has scheduled the conversion of two more before the end of 1954.

T. A. Saunders, President of the Union Telephone Company, announced that the Company had received authority from the Michigan Public Service Commission to issue and sell 40,000 shares of $25.00 par Cumulative Preferred Stock carrying an annual dividend rate of $1.35 per share.

Mr. Saunders stated that the net proceeds from the sale of the $1,000,000 principal amount of preferred stock will be used to continue the Company's improvement and expansion program throughout the 74 communities served by the Company in 31 counties in Michigan.

DOG THIEVES AT WORK!
Every fall just before the opening of hunting season hundreds of valuable hunting dogs suddenly "disappear" from the premises of owners, and most are victims of pretty well organized bands of thieves. A good many of them will never again be seen in Michigan. Hunters in far-off states will have purchased them in good faith from alleged "owners."

Preventive Measures

There are sound and sensible ways and means to put a stop to this nefarious practice. Close supervision over your dog at all times is one method, of course. Obedience training under the direction of one master will keep the dog from responding to a stranger, or from getting into trouble.

Obedient enough owners are hard to convince that this idea is a necessity. Each one who has never had a dog stolen feels that "it will never happen to me." When it does it's too late! But every fall, just before hunting season, dogs begin to disappear. After spending many long weeks in training the dog the owner's indignation over his loss is certainly understandable.

Certain precautions in field training are wise at this time of year, too. Dog thieves sometimes frequent training areas driving the boundary roads, looking for wide-ranging dogs out of sight of their masters. Such animals will often get into a car upon invitation, making the thief's job easy. A few hours later the dog may be across the state line on the way to a new owner.

Take the sure way to put a stop to this racket. Have your dog tattooed right now!

Slugger Wins the "Home" Game

From where I am, Slugger does not seem to be the other's best material, and is not "the best".
When Slugger has been playing, I was never too fond of him, but it was time for a change. I had a good time with him, and I think he will do well.
When the player has a bad day, it is better to have him play than to have him sit out. I think he will do well.
